„Staten Island?, N.Y.. The writer knew about the exclusion of his article on the Sims case and protested against it. He said that the reason that the country subscribers got copies of the Register containing the article was that their copies were mailed first and the issue was not changed until the country subscriptions were on their way. He also says that Rev. Samuel May Jr. thought that Dr. Francis Parkman had the article with drawn because the writer mentioned him in connection with another one. Does not agree with Rev. S. 216 Richmond St., Glasgow. Makes some explanations about the box of donations for the Boston fair. Complains of the opposition of the clergy. Henry C. Wright's attack on the Sabbath was a bold step in Scotland, where its observance is especially revered. Garrison has been assailed by the religious press "with the old Bugbear of infidelity." Regrets that Garrison's visit was so short, "that he was so hurried & over-worked." Commends the labors of H.C. Wright, who is with Douglass in England, in behalf of the Antislavery League. James N. Buffum is remembered with affection and esteem. The writer disapproves of "the [redacted] of Frederick Douglass." Praises George Thompson.
